

Hands of Hope June Newsletter – 2010

Ever wonder what it is like to grow up in a rural community in a third world country? Zimbabwe used to be called the “Breadbasket of Southern Africa.” But times have changed. It is reported that close to 6,000,000 Zimbabwean’s are on the brink of starvation, most of who live in the rural areas.

Donhodzo - Rural Feeding Projects

Hands of Hope now partners with “Christ for Salvation Church” and Pastor Erasmus in a feeding project in a rural area called Donhodzo. Here are some of the children in this needy area.

Most of the children were not going to school so Pastor Erasmus approached the Ministry of Education and was given permission to start a Satellite School. Donhodzo School is now open with one “classroom” seen below and the government has also promised to give them teachers.

The church is confident that the Lord is going to do something great in the lives of these orphans! We can’t thank you enough for your support, love, generosity and prayers in giving these children a future and a hope.

For Him and for the children,
Glen and Patty
